Learning Strategies to Improve Memory, Attention, Organization and Other Executive Function Skills

Presenter: Barbara Piper, M.A. / TAP Consultant
Wednesday, February 23, 2022
8:30 - 11:30 AM or 12:30 - 3:30 PM

Ever wonder why your students don't do what you ask them to do, when you ask them to? This session will provide you with an understanding of these types of learning difficulties and what you can do to improve students' performance in the areas of memory, attention, organization, and other executive function skills. Topics included in this training:

- The neuroscience of learning.
- What Executive Function skills are.
- LOTS of Instructional Strategies:
 - to support memory
 - to focus attention
 - to support organizational skills.
- Applying learning strategies so your students can be successful by doing "what you ask of them, when you ask it!"

This training is applicable to: General Education (all levels) and Special Education Teachers (all levels), and other interested staff
